

Stimulate Group Interaction and Provide a Critical Perspective

Teacher gave feedbacks on group presentations. The feedbacks were handled in a variety of ways, which encourage self-correction and self-construction of knowledge. The most common methods used by teacher include the use of probing questions, asking for clarification, linking ideas of each groups for cross referencing or eliciting more critical questions, and providing critical perspectives to enhance student learning.

Please refer to the video.
